

Every year we are inundated with lists. From the Black List to the Brown List to the Blood List to the Brit List to the Hit List, we have seen it all. Now, it's time for The Wish List, a list of the best unproduced, unwritten screenplays of 2010.

The list is determined based on a comprehensive voting process involving five rounds of nominations, a tribunal of development executives, the BCS computer ranking algorithm, and the United States Electoral College.

The Wish List is not a “best of” list. It is, at best, a “waste of the next few minutes of your life.”
